Italy Spy Case

TURIN—Italian counter-intelligence agents arrested noted parachutist Giorgio Rinaldi, 39, his wife, Angela Maria, 52, and their chauffeur Armando Girard, 30, on charges of spying for the Soviet Union. Sources said films found in Girard's baggage and at Rinaldi's home showed details of the NATO base at Aviano, in northern Italy, and of U.S. bases in Spain.

The three reportedly admitted having spied since 1956 and implicated several Italians, Russians and Spaniards. Two Soviet diplomats may be expelled from Italy in connection with the espionage ring, the sources said.
